

Bruno Hoen is a professor of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine. He graduated as an MD and a PhD at the University of Nancy and specialized in Internal Medicine, Nephrology, Intensive Care Medicine, and Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine. His clinical research activities include infective endocarditis, HIV infection, and emerging infectious diseases. He is the past-president of the International Society of Cardiovascular Infectious Diseases. In January 2020 he joined the Institut Pasteur as the Director of Medical Research.